Home Safe and Warm

Safe and warm in his mother's arms, five-year-old Christopher Cook, 156 Joseph, decided he was glad to be home at 11 last night after he was found two doors from his home by volunteer searchers. He'd been missing since noon. — (Colonist photo by Ted Harris.)

'Gee, Mummy, I'm Hungry!'

Little Lost Boy Safe in Garage

Five-year-old Christopher Cook enjoyed midnight supper this morning after having been the object of a night-time search by two shifts of police, naval shore patrol, soldiers and 40 Fairfield district neighbors.

He was found about 11 p.m. hungry and cold, huddled asleep in a garage two doors from his home at 156 Joseph.

The five-year-old boy was reported missing to police at 7:30 p.m. last night.

Christopher left home after lunch, receiving strict instructions from his grandmother, Mrs. J. D. Peterson, to come home early and watch television before supper.

FOLLOWED CAT

But instead Christopher followed a cat into a neighbor's garage, decided to stay in the garage to get warm, and then fell asleep.

"I want a kitty for Christmas," he confided after he was found.

About 11 p.m., searchers found him and took him home to his mother, Mrs. June Cook.

After a quick hug and a few questions, Christopher got a hot bath to warm him up and his relieved grandmother began preparing his late supper.

"Gee, Mummy, I'm hungry," was just about all Christopher could say when he first got home.

BIT ANNOYED

His mother and grandmother were "relieved, happy and just a bit annoyed" when little Christopher, "who loves to wander," was brought home.

"He didn't have his jacket on and was freezing," said Mrs. Peterson. "I thought all the time that he would probably be huddled up somewhere trying to get warm."

Deputy City Police Chief Harry Mercer had ordered two shifts of men and officers to concentrate on the Fairfield area. Naval shore patrol, army men and other groups were also searching.

Nothing New Under Sun

LONDON (AP) — Midnight passed in Moscow without any sensational announcement to climax the 40th anniversary celebration of the Russian revolution.

Satellite

Will Dog Jump?

MOSCOW (AP) — Reports circulated in Moscow Thursday night that the Russians may be trying to parachute Laika back to earth from Sputnik II.

These reports indicated an announcement might be expected by today.

Return of the dog to earth would complete a triumph in the saga of the canine-carrying satellite—a round trip to outer space. The parachute drop would be the longest ever. The high point of Sputnik II's orbit is 1,056 miles and the low something over 100 miles.

Moscow radio reported earlier Thursday that radio signals still were being received recording the "main physiological functions of the animal."

A report by the Soviet news agency Tass said telemetric stations are continuing to register movements of Sputnik II but made no mention of the dog passenger.

Twister Rakes Texas

ORANGE, Tex. (AP) — A tornado skipped across this gulf area Thursday night, striking four towns and injuring more than 100 persons.

There were two reported deaths.

Saint Mary's Hospital at Port Arthur, Tex., said 100 injured had been admitted there. It was not immediately clear from which of the stricken towns the injured came.

FIRES FOLLOW

Several fires, believed to have been started after electric transmission lines were smashed, broke out in Groves.

One report said a wall of the Dewitt Hospital in Groves was blown down.

Telephone and electric services at both Orange and Groves went out.

Can We Afford Not To?"

OTTAWA (CP)—A Manitoba educationist Thursday called for a multi-million-dollar federal program of scholarships to meet the challenge of Russian scientific advances.

Senator William M. Wall said in the Senate that failure of Canada and other Western nations to produce scientists and technicians has resulted in "a crisis in education."

One proposed plan to establish 5,000 "Canada scholarships" would cost $10,000,000 annually.

"Can we afford this?" he asked. "Perhaps a more pertinent question might be, 'Can we afford not to afford it?'"

Back from Space

Masked Men Beat Coroner

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Two masked men Thursday night dragged coroner Dr. Douglas Logie, 62, from his home to his lawn and beat him up.

Mrs. Logie said that the doorbell rang while she and her husband were sitting in the living room. Dr. Logie got up, opened the door and was pulled out on the lawn by two men wearing silk stockings over their faces.

"We'll get you Doc, we'll kill you," they said as they beat him over the head and face with their fists.

"I screamed for help," said Mrs. Logie, "I yelled and yelled." The masked men dropped Dr. Logie and left.

Mrs. Logie said her screams were answered by a passing youth who called police. Dr. Logie was treated for bruises to the head, shock and a badly bruised left eye.

Police said they were at a loss to explain why anyone would attack the coroner.

Norstad Sets Ottawa Visit

OTTAWA (CP)—Gen. Lauris Norstad, the supreme commander of NATO's land, sea and air forces, is to visit Ottawa next Wednesday and Thursday and will address a closed joint session of the Senate and the Commons.

Rocket Nose Cited As First Ever Back from Space

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower said last night U.S. scientists had solved one of the major obstacles to an inter-continental ballistic missile by firing a rocket hundreds of miles into space and bringing the nose cone back intact.

* * *

He also announced a five-point "action program," capped by appointment of a science czar, to beef up the U.S. missile program and wipe out any "temporary" advantage Russia may enjoy with its Sputniks and rockets.

SNARK HIT TARGET

In a "chins-up" radio-television address aimed at reassuring the American people, the president disclosed that James R. Killian, 55, head of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, would become his special assistant for science and technology.

He also disclosed that the air force's subsonic Snark, a jet-propelled pilotless bomber, recently landed on target after flying 5,000 miles. He said further that valuable outer space data had been obtained from three "Farside" rockets that rose 2,000 to 4,000 miles.

PROBLEM SOLVED

He noted that "one difficult obstacle" to the successful firing of long-range missiles was the problem of bringing them down on target at supersonic speeds and yet keep them from burning up like a meteor in the earth's atmosphere.

"Our scientists and engineers have solved that problem," he said. "This object here in my office is an experimental missile—a nose cone. It has been hundreds of miles to outer space and back. Here it is, completely intact."

"We frankly recognize," Eisenhower said, "that the Soviets are building up types of power that could, if we were attacked, damage us seriously. This is because no defensive system today can posibly be air-tight in preventing all breakthroughs of planes and weapons."

Eisenhower noted that to combat this, the U.S. and Canada have constructed a continental defence system reaching from far out in the Pacific around the northern edge of the continent and across the Atlantic approaches to North America.

TRAGIC FAILURE

Eisenhower said there has been a "tragic failure" among the Western nations to secure "the great benefits that would flow from mutual sharing of appropriate scientific information and effort among friendly countries."

"Why," he asked, "should we deny to our friends information that we are sure the Soviets already have—information our friends could use towards our mutual security?"

'I'm Confident'

Killian Gets Cracking

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP)—America's new science czar promised last night to "marshal the best scientific and engineering talent" to accelerate the U.S. missile program.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology president James Rhyne Killian Jr., appointed last night as a special White House assistant in science, said "I am confident the American people can meet any crisis.

"In behalf of the president, I shall move as rapidly as possible.

"A very strong scientific advisory group is an essential part of the plan and the recruiting of this group will proceed with the utmost dispatch.

"The potential for advance is tremendous," he said, "and I feel that there is a sense of urgency, mission and dedication in the scientific and engineering community of the United States capable of meeting the need."

Killian said he will travel to Washington next week to begin his program.

Recipe for Social Success: Caviar, Vodka, Muttnik

OTTAWA (BUP) — Russia's full-scale 1917 revolution was remembered with a small-scale revolution during an anniversary celebration at the Soviet embassy in Ottawa last night.

Under a brilliantly flood-lit hammer-and-sickle emblem a glittering, evening dress throng first crowded its way in, then battled its way out of the most elaborate celebration of the October socialist uprising ever staged by Soviet diplomats here.

Every embassy was represented there to chat of sputnik, muttnik and 1917 mayhem—except the U.S.

An estimated 1,300 people streamed through drawing rooms capable of accommodating 200.

Traffic was no problem as guests abandoned movement as they came abreast of tables loaded with caviar, vodka, wines from Georgia, and exotic Russian foods.

The function was in dramatic contrast to the times of strained relations when the embassy would paper official circles with invitations and achieve a sprinkling of guests.

Canadian External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith attended early and was received cordially by Soviet ambassador Dmitri Chuvahin and Madame Chuvahin.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THE mud at the bottom of the Gorge may be pumped up and sold as fertilizer.

Alderman Geoffrey Edgelow, chairman of the Gorge Waterway Improvement Association, says that tests of the accumulated sludge show it to be good medicine for gardens.

If tentative plans work out, the sale of Gorge mud may help pay for dredging of the waterway, a process which will clean it and deepen the channel by one or two feet all the way from the CNR bridge to Portage Inlet.

Waterfront property-owners, including motor-court owners, may help finance the project.

The stuff at the bottom of the Gorge should be rich enough, because it includes all the sewage and effluent from faulty septic tanks that has managed to settle there in the last century.

Of course, tides have swept out some of it, but the sediment that remains is fairly seething with garden vitamins.

One of the aims of the Gorge improvers has been to gradually eliminate the number of septic tanks draining into the Gorge. Thanks to sewage programs, and the co-operation of Esquimalt, Saanich and the city, Gorge waters have been so much purified that swimming was resumed there after being forbidden for years.

But Geoffrey Edgelow and some of his co-workers were dismayed to learn some time ago that a whole new group of houses with septic tanks were to be built on the shore of Portage Inlet.

Roughly two dozen houses with septic tanks will go up at the base of the peninsula jutting into the inlet.

The provincial government has imposed stringent rules saying that septic tanks must have disposal fields of a certain size and in a certain position. The builders must conform to those rules.

But they still are septic tanks, and their outflow still finds its way into the inlet. Some time in the future, if someone gets careless, the outflow could help pollute the inlet and the Gorge.

Only the half of the peninsula nearest the road has been approved for building. The other half has not been cleared, because the real estate development people have not yet come up with an acceptable sewage disposal plan.

* * *

The interesting feature of the new subdivision is this: it stands on land recommended as a park by the Capital District Improvement Commission.

The commission—and several other responsible bodies—urged the provincial government to set aside this rocky, wooded peninsula with its long shore-line, as a playground for future generations.

The provincial cabinet turned it down. The government also turned down all other plans advanced to buy up land for park purposes around Victoria.

The government made its stand fairly clear: it feels that Victoria doesn't need any more open space for park development. It is spending fairly large sums—$250,000 this year alone—on various beautifying projects, including the tidying up and landscaping of the waterfront.

But the provincial government will not lay out a nickel to buy land for park purposes in the Greater Victoria area.

Some observers, taking note of the rapid expansion of Victoria's population, feel that the government is wrong in this opinion. They feel that Victoria will be sorry in another 25 years, when it is too late to do anything.

Half of that Portage Inlet peninsula is still unoccupied, in case the government should happen to change its mind.

However, I doubt if it will change. The future in store for Victoria is more houses, more profits for the real estate developers (good luck to them) and, possibly, more potential fertilizer accumulating at the bottom of Portage Inlet.

What Happened to the Monocle?

More Than Meets Eye

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Somewhere—in the United States there is a one-time Victoria visitor sporting a monocle as part of the "British" atmosphere he picked up in this fair city.

It was probably the only monocle sold here for some years and even so it's a fake—it has a plain piece of glass in it.

This odd item of information was gleaned when Victoria opticians were queried about reports that the monocle was coming back into its own in Europe after an eclipse lasting 37 years.

The optician who sold the solitary monocle, complete with broad black ribbon, used to have a flourishing business in monocles eight or 10 years ago—selling them to American tourists.

Despite the ballyhoo about Victoria's "Britishness," residents here who have one weak eye and one eye with normal vision prefer to buy conventional spectacle frames and have a blank lens put in for the good eye.

Other opticians confirmed the comments. Monocles were never very popular in Victoria, although a few made them. One or two of them still had monocle rims in stock.

About 1920 some gay young blades strolled along Government Street with monocles in their eyes, but it was only a fad and an affectation—once again almost all the lenses were plain glass.

One optician, however, knows an Alberta lawyer who uses a monocle in court—he finds it helpful in cross-examination.

There's more than meets the eye with some monocle frames—they have a small attachment which fits under the eyebrow and helps hold it in. Rims cost from $5 to $20, and of course, some monocles are rimless—just round glasses roughened on top and at the side where they rest against the nose.

Apart from theatrical groups and occasional American tourists assiduously practising British accents, there is little call for the prop which helped make the late actor Eric von Stroheim Hollywood's favorite Prussian villain.

'Thin Red Line Crossed Moon'

The moon was neither blushing nor subjected to an explosion of red dust from a Soviet rocket early last evening. But a mysterious red band was reported crossing its countenance for a few minutes.

W. E. Cozens, 110 Bushby Street, was returning to Victoria in a fishing boat near Race Rocks when he said he noticed a red patch at the top of the moon.

"The sun had set and it was a little after 5:30 p.m.," he told the Colonist. "The patch soon resolved into a red band that slowly moved down across the moon's surface and finally disappeared at the bottom."

Edges of the band were "sharply defined," he said, not diffused as a cloud. There were no visible clouds in the area.

A Dominion Astrophysical Observatory official said no unusual phenomena were noticed at Little Saanich Mountain during normal observations at the time.

Astronomer Dr. K. O. Wright explained that the moon appears reddish in color when near the horizon and that a small fog patch might have given the appearance of a red band.

Earlier in the day, Horace Draper, the observatory's official photographer, was able to take two pictures of the latest Russian satellite and several pictures of the eclipse of the moon.

Iodine is added to table salt in order that the thyroid gland may receive the necessary supply of iodine, from which it manufactures thyroxin, the substance which controls metabolism or the speed at which humans live. A lack of iodine in the diet may cause simple goitre.

Juveniles Admit Cheque Passing

Two juveniles, transferred to open court pleaded guilty to charges involving cheques for a total of $981.05 in two courts yesterday.

William Robert Guyatt, 16, no fixed address, and a 15-year-old companion were charged jointly in all but one of the cases.

All cases followed a similar pattern, and stemmed from the theft from an automobile owned by Charles Cowie, of the Charles A. Cowie Tree Surgeons Ltd., of a number of the firm's cheques.

Three cheques, on Royal Bank of Canada blanks, were then made out in varying amounts payable to Guyatt. Police said the forgeries were made by one youth, and the other youth cashed them—mostly in grocery stores.

First cheque was dated Sept. 26 and made out for $36.53. Others were made out in varying amounts up to $167, and dated up to Oct. 15, of those specified yesterday in Saanich and city courts.

Additional charges are to be laid in Oak Bay court today, in Esquimalt court and possibly by the RCMP. Total value of the cheques involved is about $1,600.

The charge against Guyatt alone, to which he also pleaded guilty, involves a cheque written by him Sept. 11 on a Bank of Nova Scotia blank in the name of C. A. Minter. It was for $59.60.

Charges against the two in city court were for forgery; in Saanich for false pretences by means of worthless cheques.

Veterans To Get $10 More

(From CP and BUP)

OTTAWA—The Commons last night passed a bill to increase [illegible] pensions from $67 to $70, with other benefits to the veterans and their dependents.

The bill, which will effect some 57,000 persons, will come into effect as of Nov. 1. However, Veterans' Affairs Minister A. J. Brooks said delays in computing the new cheques would mean some recipients might not receive their increases until next month.

Pressure Growing

OTTAWA (CP) — Increasing provincial pressure for wider coverage in the federal government's proposed national hospital insurance scheme indicates that it will be—officially or otherwise—a main topic of interest at the federal-provincial conference here later this month.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has invited at least one provincial leader — Premier Campbell of Manitoba — to raise the question of including mental and TB patients under the plan's coverage at the Ottawa meeting Nov. 25 and 26.

The federal government and particularly Health Minister Monteith — have been giving close study to a list of proposals for reconsideration approved at a Toronto meeting of provincial health officials in September.

Superb Performance

Victorians Thrill To La Traviata

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Victorians went to a "live" opera last night for the first time in more than two years, fearing a little that it might not be good and then being happily surprised by a superb performance.

Wagner Opera Company of New York presented Verdi's "La Traviata" in the Royal Theatre as a Famous Artists event and a young New York girl, soprano Kathy Miller, sang and acted away with most of the honors as Violetta, the "lost one."

In voices, orchestra, costumes, scenery and lighting, this was an excellent production. It lacked only good acting on the part of the male leads, but this shortage made the performance of Miss Miller all the more outstanding.

Officials of the opera company said after the show there was a good chance the company would return next year with either "La Boheme" or "Madame Butterfly."

From the moment the curtain rose, the tall, slender blonde soprano was the star. She was most effective in her two arias at the end of the first act but was also good in the quieter finale.

Miss Miller showed a full, clear and powerful voice which obviously has had the best of training. Her higher notes in particular were thrilling. Her stage movements were so good (she has played in summer stock) as to make the other leads seem to move woodenly.

James Cosenza, alternating with lead tenor Robert Weede, Jr., in the difficult role of Alfredo, has a rich, robust voice. Arthur Budney as his father sang movingly, especially in the famous aria "Di Provenza Il Mar."

Praise must also be given to Francesco Foti for conducting the skilled 25-piece orchestra, well-trained chorus and soloists in highly successful fashion. A small ballet and two solo dancers had better have been left out, but were on stage only briefly.

All in all, a fine show which likely will become the best of the present entertainment season. Next Famous Artists event, in the Royal Nov. 25, is the Kovach and Rabovsky ballet troupe.

Ex-Auto Court Owners Must Return $34,779

Chief Justice Sherwood Lett of the B.C. Supreme Court has given a judgment ordering Mr. and Mrs. George Barre, former owners of the 16-unit Royal Auto Court at Colwood, to return a $34,779 down payment for the court to Howard West, formerly of Calgary.

The auto court will be returned to the Barres.

The chief justice said there was no evidence of fraud in the sale of the court.

But he added there had been misrepresentation in that the defendants omitted to show Mr. West profits and expenses of the auto court for 1954.

Labor Councils Agree on Borders

A line dividing the jurisdictions of Victoria Labor Council and Nanaimo District Labor Council was agreed to at a meeting with Canadian Labor Congress president Claude Jodoin in Vancouver last month, it was reported at Victoria Labor Council last night.

The line runs from Jordan River to Musgrave on Salt Spring Island, with workers to the south in Victoria jurisdiction, and to the north in the Nanaimo council.

Mighty Array of Rockets, Guns

Red Surprise: No Surprises

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union paraded a mighty array of new tatical rockets and guns at its 40th birthday celebration Thursday without unveiling any of the major surprises the world had been led to expect.

The big puzzler for Western military men in the massive [illegible] march in Red Square were two huge guns of strange design. Moscow radio talked of "a new type of artillery based on the principle of jet propulsion," but there was no explanation.

There were many tactical weapons capable of delivering [illegible] the biggest rockets were 70 to 75-footers in the 400-500 mile range.

With most leaders of the Communist world looking on, Defence Minister Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky made the major speech.

He declared the Soviet people "ardently desire peace" but that "the Soviet armed forces are capable of crushing any aggressor." He accused "aggressive circles in the U.S.A." of preventing disarmament and "threatening mankind with the dangers of atomic war."

Malinovsky stood atop the Lenin-Stalin tomb where Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov—the man he replaced in the defence ministry two weeks ago—had taken the salutes.

The flight of new Soviet planes was called off by bad weather. Rehearsals had shown several new turbo-prop transports but no new military types.

The new weapons—apparently for tactical or troop support rather than strategic use—give Soviet military forces greater mobility on the ground and more rocket power in the air, two big guns. They appeared Western military men were capable of firing atomic warheads, uncertain what to make of the heads.

Parade Film Seized

MOSCOW (AP) — Police Thursday confiscated film from two members of the diplomatic colony who shot scenes of the Soviet anniversary military parade.

Motion pictures were banned except for those taken by Soviet photographers. The police confiscated movie film made by Mrs. Mahmoud El Tohamy, wife of the Egyptian military attache.

Although authorities placed no restrictions on still photos in Red Square, a roll of still film was confiscated from A. Chelouche, first secretary of the Israeli embassy.

No Exclusive Powers

THE unveiling of a medium rocket missile at the Moscow military show yesterday came with little surprise to the world. It has been obvious for some time that Soviet Russia would seek to match the United States step for step and weapon for weapon in an age when no scientific knowledge can remain exclusive. In rocketry the Russians had a flying start when they took over the captured Nazi bases and presumably many of their personnel. What this disclosure does is to bring out into the open the fact that both nations are clearly on the road towards a developed inter-continental missile, which could carry an atomic warhead.

Since the latent potential was already there, it is better that this turn of events has been brought out into the open, where it may now act as a mutual deterrent. The situation is somewhat analogous to the time when the United States alone possessed the atom bomb and believed that no other nation could duplicate it. There could surely have been no stronger urge to try. Half a dozen nations now have the ability to make fission weapons, while three at least have also developed the fusion weapon, the hydrogen bomb. The world is again confronted with the fact that there is nothing exclusive to scientific knowledge, and that what one nation has today many nations may have tomorrow.

What is disturbing about the Soviet Russian advance with rocketry is that it has been pretty well demonstrated. If anything, they seem to be ahead of the United States in the development of rocket fuel. If there is such a disability it will unquestionably be eliminated now. Followed to its conclusion, such a state of affairs could end in the capacity for human destruction not merely being mutual, but multilateral among a widening list of countries. Under such conditions would any nation dare to aim the first blow? In the long run, paradoxical as it appears, all "frightfulness" defeats itself.

Politically, for its propaganda value, the unveiling of a Soviet medium range missile may be a greater embarrassment to the West than the fact itself. The same circumstance, however, could also account for Mr. Khrushchev's altered and somewhat moderated tone. Without fear of attack by means it once did not possess, Soviet Russia may in fact prove more willing to listen to reason than the political fulminations of the past seemed to imply. Nothing in these facts would justify the West in letting down its guard against surprise or bad faith, but entirely to the contrary. What may transpire, however, is a gradual lessening of tensions in the world, and less sabre rattling everywhere.

The Flower of Memory

THERE is no week so named, but this could be termed Poppy Week. Already this symbol of a great sacrifice is on display, to culminate in the Remembrance Day ceremonies next Monday. To wear a poppy is a badge of honor, for it reflects undying memory of those in whose name it is fashioned and worn. Ever since John McCrae wrote these words: "In Flanders field the poppies blow between the crosses, row on row," this blood-red flower has come to signify an anniversary that becomes more deeply entrenched as the years pass by.

The wearing and the use of the poppies are of twofold meaning. First of course they recall the war dead whose names they keep ever fresh; second they serve to help their comrades who survived. It is a continuing part of war veterans' work that the making of single poppies, sprays and wreaths should provide employment, and that the revenues from their sale should lend succor to other veterans in need. Those who buy these emblems of remembrance therefore unite the living and the dead.

In Ottawa on November 11 the Second World War Book of Remembrance will be dedicated, enshrining the names of 44,891 Canadian men and women who died in the armed services in that conflict. There is the older legacy, the names of 62,817 who laid down their lives in the first global war. To these figures must be added the 415 men killed in the Korean War, for Remembrance Day is a collective memory. For many participants, in fact, it embraces memories of even older wars. The poppy stands for all of our war dead.

Buy a poppy and wear it with pride, then, during this weekend. Purchase the wreaths and sprays that are available for laying as a tribute on the various local memorials. Do not re-employ last year's or the year's before, as regrettably is sometimes the case. The Remembrance Day ceremony is now old but it is yet ever new, and each year the tribute should be fresh and without stint.

In Flanders Field and many others the poppies blow, as once between the crosses row on row. They are a symbol of sacrifice, and everyone can join sacredly in memory by wearing or using this emblem flower to mark an enduring anniversary.

Yellow Lines Would Be Better

RECURRING conditions of fog at night this week have served to demonstrate the value of the painted traffic lines as a guide to drivers, many of whom have been heard to say they could not have found their way without them. On average throughout the year Victoria is singularly free from fog, but when one does occur the traffic lines prove themselves to be a motorist's best friend. They may lead him astray, but at least they enable him to steer a straight course, avoid ditches and maintain his proper place on the road in relation to oncoming traffic.

Good as these lines may be as an aid to safe driving, they could be better, however. Though white lines may be satisfactory under conditions of good visibility, yellow is a much more conspicuous color in fog or rain. White lines are apt to become almost indistinguishable through a white blanket of fog, whereas yellow stands out sharply under all but the worst conditions, when vehicles should not be moving anyhow. This has been strikingly illustrated these last few nights on the streets where yellow lines were painted last summer to designate the popular tourist routes for sightseeing trips.

Cost, of course, is a factor. Yellow road paint is a good deal more expensive than white, and it may be open to question whether in view of the low incidence of fog here, the extra cost would be warranted.

Interpreting the News:

German Stability Helpful

By JOSEPH MacSween
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KONRAD Adenauer has settled down for another four years as ruler of West Germany with a call for enthusiastic support of NATO in every way.

And when the government heads of the North Atlantic alliance hold their forthcoming meeting in Paris, the 81-year-old iron man of German politics will be one of the most remarkable present.

Perhaps more than any other country, West Germany has battled the day-by-day pressures of Communist Russia through the puppet East German state.

This has not stopped the chancellor from leading his country of 50,000,000 to an industrial position that is the envy of every European nation and scores elsewhere.

* * *

He also brought West Germany into the West European Union and into NATO itself despite violent opposition. Perhaps his most remarkable feat of all was to reconcile differences with the French, who hold a traditional and well-founded fear of the Germans.

In the face of Russian might, he failed utterly in his efforts at reunification of Germany during his first eight years of office. There is no indication that he will be any more successful during the next four in this aim, his fondest ambition.

Much of his cabinet remains intact, but one significant change is the appointment of Franz Etzel, a banker and industrialist as finance minister.

* * *

The appointment is expected to speed up German rearmament. Fritz Schaeffer, the previous finance minister who now is shifted to the justice portfolio, had delayed the program because of budget worries.

There is speculation that this change was forced on the old chancellor, who dallied six weeks befor completing his cabinet. Dr. Ludwig Erhard, aggressive economics minister who was named vice-chancellor in the shuffle, wanted Etzel to get the job.

If this is so, it was one of the few times that Adenauer's hand has been forced. Austere and strict, he is more famed for uncompromising devotion to duty than flexibility. In Germany, he has become more of an institution than a politician.

* * *

Perhaps the image of calm power that he presents — the opposite of the hysterical Hitler — was what Germany needed in its return to democracy.

The measure of West Germany's prosperity — only 12 years after war devastation — is that Adenauer has pledged assistance to a free world program of economic and cultural aid to less fortunate countries of Asia and Africa.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IT IS typical of our western civilization that "Sputnik" should be fastened to a new-born babe as its Christian name, that parodic poems should be written about the Soviet satellite, that jokesters should revel in puns about it, that all kinds of facetiousness should be in print and write it off.

I indulge that way myself, even while knowing that it, Sputnik, can't be written off; and had better not be.

There's no call for a sack suit, however, even if sartorially this happens to be a current fashion. A gloomy face is no way to face up to reality; neither, however, is hysterical hilarity.

I am personally not surprised, for I have been conditioning myself to a thesis I doubt you'll like. I have long felt that the decline and fall of the west has begun. Put more specifically and to remove the proposition from Sputnik, let me relate it to the white man.

Whether you consider Russia to be occidental or oriental is beside the argument for the moment. She is both, as it happens, which helps her to sit pretty-like on the fences.

* * *

But my lingering notion is that the great days of the white man are over. The decline won't happen in a day—which is why I view the prospect with selfish complacency. The Roman decline was spread over centuries. The white man's will be shorter, I think, but still it won't come overnight.

For as far as we can think back the white man has been the top man. Everywhere he went he pushed the colored native either out of his habitat or into its background. The sun hasn't yet set on his dominance but it is fading. Most of the world's troubles, certainly in the non-white lands, stems from the growing realization of colored peoples that they no longer need be serfs; that their wits are not necessarily inferior, and that in any case their future should be their own to do as they like with.

In short, their emancipation has begun.

It won't be stopped, either, nor will the acquisition of skills and technologies which we fondly think are ours alone. As they learn to govern and rule themselves, master the arts of what we call modern progress, the colored nations will gradually become a powerful influence in the world.

And by comparison their advances will be faster than ours have been, for they are the heirs of our knowledge.

* * *

The Asian turmoil is not so much Communistic as nationalistic, although Moscow is able to exploit the growing pains and aims of the colored nations.

There is, also, the legacy of the white man in these places; of his superiority, even of his turned-up nose. It will remain to haunt him, for that is how human nature works and human nature is not the perquisite only of white-skinned people.

Look how the allies of the U.S.A., the white allies, are chuckling among themselves because America has been done brown by Sputnik. And yet they depend on the U.S.A. for their own protection.

Mention of Sputnik brings back the general thesis advanced above, the decline and fall of our type of civilization. It is a bromide, I suppose, to cite past history and no one ever pays heed to it. The one lesson of history no one learns is that it has a lesson.

It's true to say I think that in the west we are conditioned now to a continuing search for ease and luxury. That has been democracy's goal once political freedom became a fact; a dominating concern for economic ease. This is a natural and good thing — this writer enjoys surcease from effort as much as anyone — but it has its corollary, which is a lessening of the spartan fibre.

* * *

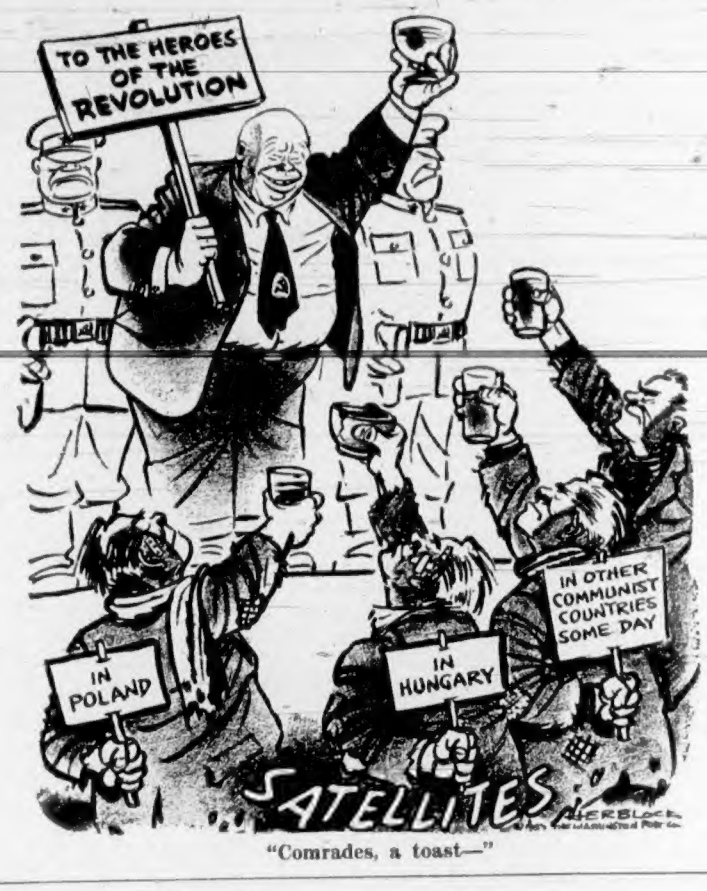
If you doubt this, recall the stupendous accomplishment of West Germany since the war, which has raised itself from ashes to a strong industrial position. Due to hard work. The more prosperous it becomes of course the more it will be apt to soften up like the rest of us, since western civilization is geared to the kind of human welfare that ends in luxury.

This is nothing new, it having been the course of human behaviour throughout the ages. But since all nations don't advance along these lines at the same time the laggards, as it were, remain tough and spartan while ease weakens the prosperous. Lord Nuffield, the Morris car man, is eighty and thus old-fashioned as well as being a millionaire, but there is merit in his remark, speaking of the 40-hour week, that a nation which goes into semi-retirement in a competitive world must abandon hope of progress.

That idea is at least symbolic of our argument.

The Soviet Union, for all of its scientific advances, is still spartan and austere as far as human living is concerned, which makes it a tough and formidable antagonist. The Russians too could become soft; as they prosper economically and as education dilutes dictatorship, as some day it will. History teaches that also.

But in general, apart altogether from Sputnik, I am afraid it is too late to arrest our luxury complex. And the latter will lead us, I rather suspect, into decline.



"Comrades, a toast—"

Vain Hopes of Freedom

Forty Years After the Revolution

By W. N. EWER, from London

JUST 40 years ago, on Nov. 7, 1917, the workers of Petrograd drove out the provisional government which had been uneasily ruling Russia since the tsar's abdication in March. The Soviet government was proclaimed with Lenin at its head. It was, though few realized it at the time, a turning point in world history.

When one looks back to those days, one tries to recapture the spirit of the revolution. What were its aims? Why did the masses — soldiers, workers, peasants—revolt? What sort of society did the Bolshevik leaders plan to build when they seized power? How do the hopes and aspirations of 1917 compare with the facts of 1957?

* * *

The demands of the masses were clear. First was a call for peace; for an end to the war. The troops on the Western Front had already begun to mutiny, to desert, to refuse to fight, to fraternize with the Germans. Kerensky stood for continuing the war; Lenin called for an immediate negotiate peace.

Second was a demand of the peasants for the land. They, too, had already started to revolt. Over large areas the Moujiks had risen, driven away their landlords, taken the land for their own.

Third was the demand of the industrial workers themselves to take over control of the factories, as peasants were taking over control of the land.

These were the slogans of the revolution. On the morning of Nov. 7 a revolutionary committee in Petrograd announced the overthrow of the provisional government. "The cause for which the people fought—the immediate proposal of a democratic peace, the abolition of landlords' property rights in the land, workers' control over production, the creation of a Soviet government — this cause is assured."

* * *

With these went another demand and another promise: freedom. "The masses," Lenin had written in April, "need peace, bread, liberty, land." The Bolsheviks promised them liberty. In the April "theses," Lenin put it in simple terms. It meant "abolition of the police, the army, the bureaucracy." It meant that all officials would be elected and subject to recall, "their salaries not to exceed the average wage of a competent worker." All that would be required of the citizens would be that they "should work equally, should regularly do their share of work and should receive equal pay," he explained in "State and Revolution."

There would have to be a transition period until the "resistance of the capitalists has been broken and classes have disappeared," during which there must be suppression of the "exploiters and oppressors." But, this completed, "a really full democracy, a democracy without any exceptions, will be realized . . . democracy means equality."

These were the hopes and promises of 1917—not only in Russia itself. "A new world is being born, a world of workers and of free peoples," said a proclamation of December. This was the kind of world that it was to be: the kind of society that was to be the outcome of the revolution.

* * *

It is a far cry from this to the realities of 1957: how far, only those whose memories go back for 40 years can fully appreciate. For we have become conditioned to think of the Soviet society as it is today.

So much has gone into what Trotsky once called "the garbage can of history."

Equality — except as an ultimate and very remote aim—has long since been denounced as heresy. So has the "workers' control." The peasants, forced into "collectives" or state farms, no longer have the land. The bureaucracy (whether ministerial or "party") is more powerful than under the tsars. The political police (though its powers may have been somewhat curbed since Beria's day) is still there. The liberties of the individual are rigidly restricted. Class distinctions are sharper than in most "Western" countries. The principle of "democratic centralism" gives the presidium of the Communist party absolute power. And it is the proudest boast of the regime that the armed forces of the Soviet Union are the strongest in the world. All the accent is not on "liberty, equality, fraternity," not on "welfare" but on "Soviet might."

To those—of whom I was one—who greeted the revolution of 1917 with hope and with enthusiasm, 1957 is a sad denial of all that we had hoped and expected.

It recalls those words of William Morris in "A Dream of John Ball": "I pondered how men fight and the thing that they fought for comes about, and when it comes turns out to be not what they meant, and other men have to fight for what they meant under another name."

Nebulous Destination

(From The Montreal Gazette)

SCIENTISTS are now trying to explain to the general public one of the strange effects (outlined in Einstein's theory of relativity) that such distances at such speeds would cause. A day would no longer be a day, a mile a mile. The space-traveller, we are told, might age only 10 years while the earth aged 1,000 years.

Not many of this generation are likely to master the theory of relativity. But one illuminating clue we can grasp.

If a planet is 1,000 light-years away from earth, then the view of it that we see now has taken 1,000 years to reach our eyes. That is, our view of that planet now is 1,000 years out of date.

On that planet, the view of earth which is reaching its inhabitants (if any) today is our earth as it looked 1,000 years ago.

Misled by centuries-old rays of light, would it be possible for a space traveller to set out for a planet which no longer exists?

It is a disconcerting thought.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

LITTLE by little, everything is going against wild nature. We sometimes imagine that sufficient public sympathy and interest have been aroused — as represented in natural history societies, sportsmen's associations and bird watching clubs—to give our non-unionized wild-life a fighting chance to survive. Government departments, indeed, are filling up with biologists who are dedicated to what is called wildlife management.

But you take baby food. It comes in cute little miniature cans. Up at the summer resorts, where a great many people just dump their garbage in excavations a nice distance from the cottage, young mothers open these baby food cans so many times a day. They do not, as a rule, cut the lid off completely. They cut it so it will hinge back. When it is emptied, they just shove the lid down into the can and toss it into the bucket.

Along comes a raccoon. Now, in former times, cans were nearly all good big cans such as tomato cans; and all but very large and elderly coons could shove their heads in and explore the remnants without much risk of becoming the man in the iron mask. Along, however, came a small type of can represented by soup tins and condensed milk tins. These were about two-thirds the size of the primitive tomato can. It became a commonplace for garbage foragers, especially skunks and junior raccoons, to get their heads stuck in the cans, than which a more woebegone predicament can hardly be imagined.

The wildlife management boys now report that baby food cans, particularly when their lids are shoved in, are a special menace. Raccoons have been found wandering helplessly around with both their front paws stuck in baby food cans, trapped by the lids. The needs of man have been the excuse for much of what we have done to wildlife. Now the needs of babies have joined the campaign.

Letters to the Editor

Cruelty at Home

Do you not think that at this present moment, and while this wave of mass emotionalism in connection with the unfortunate animal confined in Sputnik II is at its height, if an attempt was again made to draw the attention of the general public to the horrors and cruelty on their own doorstep "good may yet come out of evil."

I refer to the indescribable and barbaric methods still being used in the slaughtering of animals for human consumption.

Anyone who cares to confirm this can visit a slaughter house and see for themselves. Or, if they could not face up to that, they can get details from many reputable sources.

If only a little of this present overflow of horror and disgust directed toward this unhappy animal outside and beyond their control could be used nearer home, and directed, specifically toward active support of the Humane Slaughter Association (headquarters in Vancouver) we might then feel that our love of animals meant something more than mere talk and jamming the lines of the SPCAs with hysterical calls.

Cause and Effect

At its annual convention the B.C. Confederation of Labor made a motion "to end atomic tests, control and prohibit the manufacture of nuclear weapons and also abolish stocks of them."

At the same convention they endorsed the CCF in B.C. by a four-to-one vote. Apparently they don't realize that the CCF, along with all other parties except one, supports the social system that atomic tests and wars are a part of.

Science has shown beyond any reasonable doubt that the nature of any society is determined by its economic base. The CCF and the B.C. Federation of Labor never question the existence of the wage-labor capital relationship.

They hypocritically endorse the cause of all the effects they condemn, such as missile war, poverty, unemployment and insecurity. That this hypocrisy is not intended detracts not at all from the result of their efforts, which will be a continuation in a more intense form of all those things they declaim, and may terminate in the destruction of human society itself.

Socialism, a propertyless, wageless, moneyless society is the only solution.

Canada's Indifference

The outburst of attack on the Russian scientists for sending an unfortunate dog in Sputnik II was certainly not surprising.

What is surprising is the indifference to the daily unnecessary agonizing suffering endured by domestic animals in this country because Canada has no humane slaughtering law as have Great Britain and other northern European countries.

If only your readers would send to Humane Slaughter Association, 602-606 West Hastings Street, Vancouver 2, for their pamphlet of facts and write their member of Parliament urging the needed legislation.

It seems only a public demand will get this done.

A. P. RAINEY.

Ignorant Slander

As a Christian I write to pay warm tribute to Mr. Hans Gruber for his letter in Sunday's Colonist. Conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and so well known, he creates trust for his fellow Jews in Canada in people who ignorantly echo slander and abuse against them. So it is a helpful letter indeed for our province and, in fact, Canada. We both believe people should be judged regardless of race or religion on their personal character records only.

(Mrs.) A. COLCLOUGH.

Humane Slaughter

Regarding the letters you have printed recently on the subject of humane slaughter, we should all be very gratified with the active part the Most Rev. H. E. Sexton, Archbishop of British Columbia, has taken in asking the executive council of the Anglican Church of Canada to recommend to the federal government that a more humane method of slaughter than that at present used be adopted.

We hope to see the other religious denominations follow his example in recommending merciful treatment of the living creatures under our control, for to extend mercy is one of the great tenets of the Christian faith.

Our federal member of parliament, Hon. G. R. Pearkes, is in favor of humane methods of slaughter being installed in our slaughter houses, by means of legislation.

All who would forward this cause should write to their members of parliament, both federal and provincial. Those who eat meat will doubtless feel the greatest responsibility in ensuring as little suffering as possible to the creatures slaughtered to provide the meat.

(Mrs.) I. NEWTON.

Diefenbaker Cool To Summit Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker suggested yesterday that the NATO council next month consider Russia's proposal for an East-West summit meeting.

Today that the NATO council next month consider Russia's proposal for an East-West summit meeting.

However, he added it would be unrealistic for Canada to say at this time that it favored such a conference.

Mr. Diefenbaker was replying in the Commons to CCF Leader Coldwell who asked whether the government would consider immediate acceptance of the Soviet proposal, made Wednesday by Nikita Khrushchev, Russian Communist party secretary.

* * *

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States said Thursday any high-level meetings on East-West problems would be desirable "only if there are reasonable grounds for expecting . . . beneficial results."

But State Secretary Dulles, in an informal talk with reporters, said he was not sure Khrushchev necessarily meant a summit meeting. And Dulles did not close the door on the possibility of any meeting.

"High level representatives might or might not mean heads of governments," he said.

* * *

LONDON (AP)—Britain and France have cold-shouldered Nikita Khrushchev's proposal for an East-West summit meeting. He renewed the idea Wednesday at a 40th anniversary session of the Supreme Soviet in Moscow.

At July 1, 1957, the average wage in Canadian manufacturing was $63.37 a week, compared to $62.91 a year earlier, and $37.19 ten years earlier.

Father's Duty Clear . . . . . . In Upper Egypt

'I Must Kill My Daughter'

CAIRO (AP) — An Egyptian servant asked for a few weeks off to pay a visit to his ancestral village in Upper Egypt.

"I must go home to kill my daughter," he explained to his employer.

The daughter had gone wrong. Under the stern tribal law of primitive Upper Egypt, the father's duty was clear. He had to kill the daughter to save the family name.

Hardly a day passes that some murder of honor is not committed in Egypt. It is a common sight in Egyptian village police stations to see a man walk in, bloody dagger in hand, to report he has killed his daughter. Honor crimes fall into two classes—those to punish immorality and those of revenge.

The plea of family honor is respected by Egyptian courts. The slayer normally gets six months in jail, with a maximum sentence of two years.

When a girl is suspected of misbehaving in an Egyptian village, the family holds a meeting. One member of the family is chosen to "wash out" the family name. Usually it will be the father or a brother.

Folk songs often heard in villages praise the man who has killed his sinful daughter as a hero who has done his duty. In the song, the girl is depicted as getting the fate she has earned.

Family honor likewise must be protected, in case a member of the family has been killed.

A family whose member has been killed cannot accept condolences until the blood has been avenged by killing a member of the offending family. Unless revenge is taken, the family is taunted in the village. Urchins on the streets ridicule the men of the family with the cry: "No more men in that family."

Pearkes Promises:

Canada-U.S. Tie-Up 'Safe'

OTTAWA (BUP) — Canada would not go to war just because an American general "pushes a button" Defence Minister George Pearkes assured the Commons yesterday. He said the Canadian government would have to be consulted before air defensive action could be taken.

The United States commander of the joint Canada-U.S. air defence command set up last August, will have no authority over the disposition and logistics of Canadian forces in peacetime, the minister said.

The purpose of the joint command will be to develop "the plans and procedures to be used in war," Pearkes added. "These plans and procedures are to be agreed on in peacetime, and to be ready for use in emergency."

In time of war, Pearkes said, the command would be responsible for direction of air operations, in accordance with plans agreed upon in peace-time. These would include: rules for identification of aircraft; action to be taken if these aircraft failed to heed warnings, and methods designed to prevent a surprise attack.

Inco Leads Late Advance At Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market rallied strongly at the close to swing prices generally higher after a session of sluggish trading in which there was little trend.

International Nickel seemed to spark the advance, gaining three points after recording only a fractional gain for most of the session. It closed at 75½. Other senior issues, which had shown little change earlier, jumped ahead in a fractional range. The lower-priced mines, however, were mixed to higher. Coppers had several strong gains. Trans Mountain, Aluminum, General Dynamics, Power Corp., Page-Hersey Tubes and Interprovincial Pipe Line were among the industrials which gained a point or more.

Pacific Pete and Hudson Bay Oil, each with gains of at least a point, led western oils ahead. Fargo was up 35 cents to $5.65 and Central Del Rio gained 15 cents at $7.40.

Utilities Favored

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were mixed to higher at the close.

Utilities stood out, with Union Gas up 3 at 60 and B.C. Telephone up ¾ at 38¼. Bell Telephone lost ¼ at 38⅝.

Base metals were mixed. International Nickel gained 2½ and Hudson Bay lost 1½ at 49¼. Steels were also mixed. Powell River added ¾ at 33¾ and Price Brothers slipped ½ at 41.

In the beverages Canadian Breweries was down ¾ at 24¼ and Distillers Seagrams up ⅞ at 26.

Interprovincial Pipeline improved 1½ at 40. Trans-Mountain a point to 64 and Triad Oil 15 cents at 4.65, while McColl Oil fell 1½ to 51½.

Exotic Fuels Boom

NEW YORK (UP)—Prices rose near closing time.

Exotic fuel producers featured all day. At their highs they showed gains ranging to more than 3 points in U.S. Borax. The missile makers got into action late in the day and ran up 3 points or so from their lows to record net gains ranging to more than a point.

Chemical shares met demand and moved higher. Du Pont rallied more than 2 points from its low and was a point net higher. American Potash rose more than a point.

For 24 minutes early in the day trading was suspended in Olin Mathieson, one of the principals in exotic fuel manufacture. The issue ran up more than 4 points. Thompson, another issue connected with the missile program, rose 3 points.

Bendix Aviation gained more than 2 points and Douglas Aircraft 2. Other aircrafts were strong and active. Steels met demand. Metals made belated response to a firmer tone in copper prices, with International Nickel up 2 points.

Oils Make Gains

VANCOUVER — Volume of business was extremely low, but the tone was strong.

Oils made a number of gains, including Canadian Atlantic at 5.05, Fort St. John at 4.35, United at 2.55, and Charter at 2.15.

Mines also strengthened with Bralorne up 5 cents at 4.30, and Highland Bell up 5 at 1.30, Cowichan at 1.10, Bethlehem at 1.00 and Trojan at 27 cents presented a firm front among coppers.

Industrial changes were small although Inland Gas added 25 cents at $7.50.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices showed irregularity in moderate activity. Majority of interest appeared in flax and new overseas business was reported.

Flax prices firmed as the session progressed under increased interest from various sources. Offerings were liberal and in the form of American selling and light hedges.

Oats and barley trade was thin under domestic support and prices moved narrowly. Rye prices were erratic but firmed in late trade under American and local support.

Exports loadings of Canadian wheat included the Netherlands, 950,000, Peru 410,000, West Germany 400,000 and the United Kingdom 325,000.

Dedicate Out of 'Dream Race'

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—Dedicate, Mrs. Jan Burke's handicap star, has a bruised right quarter and will not run in Saturday's $75,000 Trenton Handicap, the track announced Thursday.

Dr. William Miller, veterinarian, reported to Mrs. Burke in New York that the five-year-old thoroughbred will be unable to run for at least four or five days.

Mrs. Burke telephoned racing secretary Ty Shea at Garden State that Dedicate cannot run Saturday in what has been billed as the race of the year against the three-year-old standouts, Gallant Man, Round Table and Bold Ruler.

Earlier Thursday, Mrs. Burke denied a report which came from New York Wednesday night that she definitely had declared Dedicate from the Trenton. She told Shea the horse would be examined to see if he was fit to run.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Burke's husband, Eddie, said in New York that Dedicate might never run again. It had been planned to retire the horse to stud in the spring.

You can't go ALL-OUT if you feel ALL-IN

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" heavy-headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter.

Large Canadian Firm May Foot Track Bills

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada Thursday began considering a proposal that a large business firm foot the bill for track and field activities across the country.

Fred Harding of Toronto, representing the central Ontario branch of the AAU, said the company is thinking of spending $60,000 to $70,000 from its advertising budget.

The firm was not named but delegates at the AAU annual meeting were told it is connected with dairy firms across the country and the executive who advanced the proposal is "an old track athlete himself."

PLAN MAY EXTEND

Neil Farrell of Hamilton, president of the southwestern Ontario branch of the AAU, said the aid might be extended to other sports if it worked in track and field.

Harding said professional sports have big business behind them and amateur athletics must get the same aid not only to continue but to survive.

"The day is past when we can go out and ask for money without offering something in return," he said in a reference to the advertising tie-up that would result.

Since the firm is in business across Canada it insists on a national plan, and felt that through its offices across the country it could help in other ways besides direct financial aid.

AAU committees studying the plan were to consider the size and nature of a track and field program that could be carried out, the estimated cost, and the conditions under which the "angel" could use the plan as advertising.

Claims Canadian Record

Still dripping wet after setting a Canadian record in the 50-yard backstroke, Bob Wheaton of Oak Bay High School receives congratulations from teammates Alice Genge, left, and Sally Holland. Wheaton chopped one second off the Canadian mark with a time of 27.2 seconds, and Oak Bay went on to an easy victory in the annual inter-high school swimming gala at Crystal Garden. — (Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Richards Continue Spree As Habs Rout Wings, 6-0

If coach Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens is wearing a somewhat smug expression these days, he does so with justification.

At the beginning of the 1957-58 National Hockey League campaign, Blake predicted that his so-called second line of Dickie Moore and the Richard brothers—Maurice and Henri—would score 90 goals this season. Judging from their whirlwind start, it may have been a conservative estimate.

Henri got two goals, Maurice scored once and assisted on two others, and Moore drew two assists at Montreal last night as the Canadiens celebrated Jacques Plante's return to the nets with a 6-0 victory over the crippled Detroit Red Wings.

The Rocket's three points pushed him into the lead in the NHL scoring race, one point ahead of Henri and five up on Moore.

Henri now has 12 goals and nine assists in 12 games. The Rocket has 11 goals and 11 assists and Moore has six goals and 11 assists, and the line has already reached the one-third mark of Blake's objective.

A fair indication of the scoring spree of the two Richards lies in the fact that between them they have scored the same number of goals as the entire Detroit team.

SAWCHUK BESIEGED

The Canadiens scored four goals in the third period and poured a total of 53 shots at the besieged Terry Sawchuk as they moved back into a first-place tie with the idle New York Rangers. In three games against the Wings, Montreal has scored 18 goals, beating them 6-0, 6-3 and 6-0.

The Wings, who have now taken only three points in their last seven games, were without defenceman Red Kelly and forward Lorne Ferguson, who suffered a hairline collarbone fracture a couple of weeks ago and had continued playing without realizing the extent of his injury.

To replace Ferguson, the Wings called up Dennis Olson from Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League. Olson was leading the Flyers with three goals and seven assists.

Donnie Marshall, who scored twice against Detroit on Saturday, got two more goals last night and Claude Provost added one for the goal-happy Habs.

At Boston, Billy Harris fired two goals and goalie Ed Chadwick was good in the tight spots as Toronto Maple Leafs downed the Bruins, 5-3. A crowd of 11,245 watched Bronco Horvath, Boston's leading scorer, match Harris' effort, but the Bruins still went down to their seventh defeat in eight games.

Brad Sloan and George Armstrong were the other Toronto marksmen, and Don McKenney scored the Bruins' other goal.

Announcement Today

Filchock Fired by Roughriders

Although the Saskatchewan Roughriders won't make the announcement official until sometime today, veteran coach Frank Filchock has been fired as coach of the Western Interprovincial Football Union club, which wound up in last place this season.

Filchock, first Canadian grid coach to lose his job this season, was told yesterday by the executive of the Saskatchewan club that his contract will not be renewed for the 1958 season. However, club officials decided to hold the announcement for release today.

The 41-year-old former passing star both in Canada and the United States, said he first learned of the club's decision yesterday morning from a friend he met on the street.

"I don't understand why I was fired," Filchock said. "This is the first time a team I've been with has missed the playoffs in the 10 years that I've been connected with Canadian football."

Riders, beset by injuries to several key players this year, had their most dismal season since Filchock took over the coaching job in 1953 from Glenn Dobbs. Saskatchewan managed only three wins and a tie in 16 starts.

Filchock began his Canadian football career in 1947, playing two seasons with Hamilton Tigers of the ORFU. In 1949, Filchock passed and quarterbacked Montreal Alouettes to the Grey Cup and he played and coached Edmonton to the WIFU title in 1952.

Speaking Briefly

Vikings Help Open City Hoop Season

Victoria College Vikings clash with Morrisons Saturday night at Central Junior High School gym in the opening game of the Senior "B" Men's Basketball League schedule.

It had originally been reported that the game would be held at Lansdowne Junior High School.

Victoria College girls meet Victoria Polyettes in the opening game at 7.30, with the Vikings-Morrisons game scheduled for 8.30.

Bill Garner's Vikings, defending Western Canada junior champions, will campaign in the senior "B" league as they did last season, but their games will be classed only as exhibitions. At the end of the season they will play off with Royal Roads Tri-Services College for the city junior crown.

Surrey in Top Shape For B.C. Final Here

Coach Bud Swain, cautiously optimistic after watching his club's final workout, reported last night that Surrey Rams are in top physical shape for Saturday's final against Oak Bay Drakes at Macdonald Park.

"We're in good shape all right, but I have a lot of respect for the Drakes. From what I saw last week when I scouted them, they have a big club with lots of experience," Swain said. "However, I do think we're going to give them the best game they've had this season."

Swain also named his starting lineup. Dan Burch will be at quarterback, with Dennis Thune and Hardy Sullivan at fullback. Jack Cole and Ron McNichol will run from the halfback slots.

On the offensive line, it will be Dave McGuire at centre with Blackie Little and Al Walcott at guard and Jerry Rockandel and Terry Flak at tackle. Starting ends will be Harry Keen and Larry O'Brian.

The team will take the ferry to Nanaimo and come straight to Macdonald Park from Nanaimo by chartered bus, arriving about 1:30. Game time is 2 p.m.

Bergen, seaport on the west coast of Norway, was founded in the 11th century.

Second Round Of Medal Golf Carded Sunday

Laurie Kerr will carry a one-stroke lead over Colwood clubmate Vic Painter Sunday in the second round of the season's first monthly medal competition at Gorge Vale Golf Club.

Bill McColl, also of Colwood, who led the field in the first round, won't be on hand Sunday.

Flyers in Top Display As Adams Lights Fuse

Jack Adams, who has trouble enough with his own Detroit Red Wings, flew into Winnipeg last night to find out why number one farm club, Edmonton Flyers, weren't well out in front of the Western Hockey League's prairie division as they were supposed to be.

Maybe it was his presence that did it, but the Flyers turned in their best display of the season replying for the Warriors, and downed the pace-setting Warriors, 3-1, to move within one point of first place.

About 4,500 fans turned out to watch the Flyers keep the lack lustre Warriors off balance with a close-checking performance. Only in the final 10 minutes did the league-leaders give the largest home crowd of the season something to cheer about, and then they couldn't beat goalie Dennis Riggin although they came close repeatedly.

Len Lunde, Gord Hannigan and Chuck Holmes scored the Flyers' goals, with Pete Kapusta and Lou Jankowski replying for the Warriors.

Seventh Straight Title

Wheaton Sets Canadian Record As Oak Bay Swimmers in Romp

Bob Wheaton shattered the Canadian backstroke record at the Crystal Garden yesterday as Oak Bay High School's powerful swimming team romped to its seventh straight victory in the annual Inter-High School Swimming Gala.

Wheaton flashed through the water in 27.2 seconds in the 50-yard backstroke event for boys under 16, knocking one second off the established Canadian mark. He had previously set a mark of 27.6 seconds in his own school gala, but no attempt was made to have it recognized.

However, officials reported yesterday that his new mark will be submitted to Canadian swimming officials and will undoubtedly go into the books as the new Canadian record.

The meet, sponsored by the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club, was a runaway for the Oak Bay swimmers, who piled up 56 points in 16 events.

Victoria High School was second with 29 points, followed by Victoria College with 23 points and Mt. Douglas High School with seven points.

Vic High Defends Northwest Crown

Victoria High School will send a five-man team to Vancouver Saturday to defend its Pacific Northwest cross-country championship in a 2½-mile race at University of British Columbia stadium.

Coach Gordon Hartley of Victoria High selected his team this week. Making the trip will be team-captain Ed Pomeroy, Jack Horn, Monty Vanden, Jim Robertson and Simon Princenburg.

The team will be up against top-notch competition in its bid to retain the PNW title. Entries have been received from University of Washington, Washington State University, University of Oregon, Oregon State University, University of Idaho, UBC, Vancouver Technical School, Vancouver Arctic Club and Princess Margaret High School of Vancouver.

Among the runners competing will be Ian Fraser, captain of the Victoria High squad last year, now running for Washington State, where he is captain of the junior cross-country team.

The race will start at 10:30 a.m.

Even Geisha Girls Turning to Golf in Japan

By ROBERT BLAZEY

TOKYO (Reuters)—A golf craze is sweeping Japan.

Geisha girls, finding their patrons devoting more time to golf than to drinking and making merry, are themselves taking up the game.

The growing popularity of golf was given a big impetus by the victory in the recent International Canada Cup matches here of the two Japanese players, Torakichi Nakamura and Koichi Ono.

Golf in Japan before the war was a game played almost exclusively by the aristocracy and their wealthy friends.

With the disappearance of the aristocracy from their high position and the influx of golf-playing Britons and Americans during the occupation, the number of golf courses increased and interest in the game spread to the professional and business classes.

Golf is beginning to figure so prominently in business life that some private companies have taken out group memberships at golf clubs for their office staff.

The deputy mayor of Kokura City in Kyushu, southern Japan, has suggested that a round of golf, with a simple lunch and a bottle or two of beer, should replace the traditional geisha party for visiting government officials.

Golf associations say that their clubs and courses are crowded to capacity during weekends. A large proportion of the new golfers are women, many of them bar and night club hostesses and geisha girls out for air and exercise.

Japanese farmers in districts where the golf courses are expanding are delighted. They can sell or rent their land at boom prices and live in leisure on the proceeds. Farmers' daughters and sons can earn big pocket money if they work as caddies and course attendants.

There are about 80 golf courses in Japan. Membership is difficult to achieve and a member has to buy shares in the club. Membership fees range from 200,000 yen ($500) to 500,000 yen ($1,250).

Foreign-made equipment can be bought only on the black market because of import restrictions. Japanese-made clubs and balls are considered good, but are not used by professional golfers or by amateurs who can afford better.

More than 100 professionals are registered in Japan.

The first Japanese golf club was organized in Tokyo in 1914. Before that, the only golf courses in Japan were privately owned by English men resident here. The first course in Japan was opened in 1903 by a Mr. Groom, an Englishman living at Kobe.

It is estimated there are 100,000 golfers in Japan today.

Rookie Voting Led By Kubek, Sanford

NEW YORK (UP) — Tony Kubek, the New York Yankees "Jack of all trades," and Jack Sanford, right-handed curve-ball pitcher for the Philadelphia Phillies, yesterday were named the major leagues' outstanding rookies for the 1957 season by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Kubek, who played five different positions for the Yankees this year, received 23 of the 24 votes in the balloting for the American League freshman award. The other vote went to Frank Malzone of the Red Sox, who was declared ineligible for the award because he had appeared in 27 games for Boston in 1956.

SWEEP FOR TONY

In the National League voting, Sanford finished first with 16 votes. The other votes were distributed among first baseman Ed Bouchee of the Phillies (four), pitcher Dick Drott of the Chicago Cubs (three) and outfielder Bob Hazle of the world champion Milwaukee Braves (one).

Kubek played left field, centre field, shortstop, third base and second base in his first season under Casey Stengel, the Yankees' master lineup juggler. Despite all this manoeuvring, he batted .297 for the American League champions.

In the world series against the Braves, the 22-year-old Polish-German youth from Milwaukee hit .286 and unloaded two home runs in the third game while playing before his home-town fans.

The 27-year-old Sanford, who kicked around in the minors for seven years before joining the Phillies late in the 1956 season, led both leagues in strikeouts with 188. He had a 19-8 record, posted an earned-run average of 3.08, walked only 93 men in 237 innings and pitched three shutouts and 15 complete games.

Brentwood Hoop

Three Victoria and District Basketball Association games will be played at Brentwood Community Hall tonight. Schedule follows:

7:30—Midget girls, Brentwood vs. Cordova Bay.
8:30—Midget boys, Brentwood vs. Burnside.
9:30—Juvenile girls, Brentwood vs. Cordova Bay.

FRANKIE ANDERSON
. . . Unanimous choice

Bright, Anderson Unanimous Choices; Three Selected as Two-Way All-Stars

By AL VICKERY

WINNIPEG (CP) — Fullback Johnny Bright of Edmonton Eskimos, who set a league rushing record, and teammate Frankie Anderson, a hard-charging defensive end, were the only unanimous choices in the balloting for the 1957 Western Interprovincial Football Union all-star team picked for The Canadian Press.

Bright, who charged through opposing lines for more than 1,600 yards, and Anderson, a big factor in Esks' tight defensive wall, were named on all 34 ballots by football writers, sportscasters and coaches in league cities.

Esks placed three men on the offensive team and four on the defensive squad, as well as having their coach, Frank Pop Ivy, named as all-star coach for the third successive year. Bombers had three players on each team.

Named to the backfield along with Bright were team-mate Jackie Parker, Gerry James of Bombers and By Bailey of British Columbia Lions. Winnipeg's Kenny Ploen, who led Iowa to the Rose Bowl last January, easily nailed down the quarterback slot.

There was an abundance of good backs in the league this season, with the selectors passing up such players as Normie Kwong and Ken Hall of Edmonton, Leo Lewis of Winnipeg, Ken Carpenter and Bobby Marlow of Saskatchewan Roughriders to name a few. Injuries cut the chances of Carpenter and Bombers' Bob McNamara, who, along with Kwong, made the 1956 all-stars.

Harry Langford, Calgary Stampeder guard, and James were the only Canadians to make the offensive squad. Oscar Kruger and Ted Tully of Esks and Gordie Rowland of Bombers gave the Canadian tinge to the defensive team.

First-year import guard Ed Sharkey of the Lions, end Jack Gotta and tackle Dick Huffman, both of Calgary, were named on both squads.

OFFENSIVE TEAM

Half — (plunging) Johnny Bright, Edmonton.
Half—Jackie Parker, Edmonton.
Half—Gerry James, Winnipeg.
Half — By Bailey, British Columbia.
Quarter—Kenny Ploen, Winnipeg.
Centre — Galen Wahlmeier, Saskatchewan.
Guard — Harry Langford, Calgary.
Guard—Ed Sharkey, British Columbia.
Tackle—Roger Nelson, Edmonton.
Tackle — Dick Huffman, Calgary.
End — Ernie Pitts, Winnipeg.
End—Jack Gotta, Calgary.
Coach—Frank Ivy, Edmonton.

DEFENSIVE TEAM

Safety — Oscar Kruger, Edmonton.
Half—Larry Isbell, Saskatchewan.
Half—Jack Gotta, Calgary.
Secondary — Ed Sharkey, British Columbia.
Secondary — Ted Tully, Edmonton.
Secondary — Gordie Rowland, Winnipeg.
Secondary—Bobby Marlow, Saskatchewan.
Middle guard—Art Walker, Edmonton.
Tackle — Buddy Tinsley, Winnipeg.
Tackle — Dick Huffman, Calgary.
End — Frankie Anderson, Edmonton.
End—Herb Grey, Winnipeg.

No runner in the West—and probably in Canada—can match Bright for straightaway power. Parker, who also rated eight votes as quarterback, is considered one of the best at the option play. A sharp passer and tricky runner, the former Mississippi State All-American has rated all-star since his arrival in Edmonton in 1954.

James, who scored a record 131 points and a record 19 touchdowns this year in the WIFU, and Bailey, mainstay of the B.C. backfield, provide extra power along the ground.

Poise was Ploen's forte as he led Winnipeg to second place this year. A fair passer, a swirling breakaway runner and a brilliant field general, Ploen drew 24 of the 34 quarterback votes.

Paul Cameron of B.C., 1956 all-star safety, lost out by one vote to Kruger, a three-year man with Esks after graduating from the University of Alberta.

Winnipeg's freshman coach Bud Grant was runner-up to Ivy for the coach's job.

Pushes Bluebird . . .

Campbell Sets New Speed Mark

. . . Past 260 MPH

By PETER UEBERSAX

LAKE CONISTON, England (UP) — Water speed king Donald Campbell, packing a new 4,000-pound thrust jet engine in his famed Bluebird speed boat, set a world record of 239.065 miles per hour yesterday over Lake Coniston and then announced he would try for 290 mph next year.

The 36-year-old Campbell, the only man to pilot a speedboat more than 200 miles an hour and live, achieved his latest record in two brilliant runs over the mirror-like lake. He broke his own former mark of 225.63 set here on Sept. 19, 1956.

Taking little more than seven minutes to make the entire run, Campbell pushed Bluebird over the measured one-kilometer (0.6321 miles) outward course at 260.10 per hour. But Bluebird's nose got dangerously light at that speed and Campbell held her down to 218.24 on the home run.

The two-run average easily broke the old mark. The speed of a trial is determined by averaging the two successive runs made within an hour.

IT WAS POSSIBLE

It was Campbell's fourth record in a little more than 27 months, but it probably was his most important. He was shooting not only for a new mark but also to break the 250-mile barrier, which some experts said was not possible.

The Bluebird, skipping and bumping along, set off a whine which could be heard for quite a distance around the lake. But most important, it stayed together and didn't flip over while Campbell was pushing her past the 260-m.p.h. figure.

The next step, Campbell said, was to take the cigar-shaped Bluebird back to the wind tunnel to prepare for an attempt at "290 miles an hour or more."

"Lake Coniston is definitely suitable for speeds up to 300 m.p.h.," Campbell said. "But Bluebird, in her present form, will not do more. She was designed for 250 m.p.h., and she was pushed to the limit in the first run yesterday."

Campbell was grinning broadly as he eased the idling Bluebird up to the pier and waved at his mechanics.

"There was a hell of a swell running," he said. "We were leaping all over the place . . . I had a real pasting."

Besides numerous endorsements and equipment contracts the handsome Englishman will receive for the second year in a row the $14,000 prize offered by a British holiday camp operator, Billy Butlin, for the world's unrestricted speed record.

City May Present Blazers to Irish

Presentation of blazers to the senior and junior Shamrocks lacrosse teams in recognition of their victories this year will be recommended to city council by its receptions and entertainment committee.

The senior Shamrocks won the Canadian title and Mann Cup, and the junior team won the western Canada championship, failed to take the Canadian championship but, Ald. Austin Curtis said, "Did a wonderful job of publicity for Victoria from the point of view of their behavior."

Powerful Pils Prove Threat to City Club

Vancouver Pilseners will field one of the most powerful lineups seen in Victoria this season when they take on Victoria and District Football League all-stars in an exhibition game Monday at Royal Athletic Park.

Manager Fred Whittaker's squad, playing in the powerful Mainland soccer league, lost its opening game, but has been unbeaten since winning four games and tieing two. In their last outing, they blasted Firefighters, 8-3.

In goal it will be either Jim Kinns, a regular for six seasons, or Joe Travis, the former Victorian who has starred with North Shore in the Coast League during the past few years.

The goalies will get plenty of protection with Jack Marsh, 19-year-old Bob Hazeldine, and lacrosse-player Bill Chisholm sharing the fullback duties.

At centre-half will be Bill Mitchell, team captain and one of several Pilseners who joined North Shore in the Canadian final at Montreal. On the half line with him will be veteran Bill Smith, formerly with North Shore, Bob Swinton or Bob Lee.

Up front, it will be veteran Bus Byford, well known to local soccer fans, playing centre-forward.

Tom Crane and Ralph Graham, both with Old Country football experience, will likely be on the wings, with Jim Docherty and Ian Wilson at the insides. It will be Wilson's first appearance with Pils after starring this season with St. Andrews.

Game time is 2 p.m.

Remember When:

Montreal Winged Wheelers won their second and last eastern Big Four football championship 26 years ago today by edging Toronto Argonauts 4-1 at Montreal. The Montreal AAA club, which previously won the Big Four in 1919, went on from the 1931 league triumph to take the Grey Cup with a 22-0 victory over Regina Roughriders.

Mayfair Shivers for Charity

. . . Stage-Frightened Duke

LONDON (AP)—Goose pimples broke out over aristocratic bare backs just before dawn yesterday at the year's gayest but coldest society party.

"I'm simply freezing to death," chattered Judy Dugdale, dressed in black fishnet tights.

The hostess, Mrs. Gerald Legge, staged her shindig for charity outdoors — on the terraced lawn of baronet Sir Alfred Bossom's Mayfair mansion. A huge marquee overhead was no bar to the chilling blasts when the mercury dipped to the 40s.

Just about everybody who is anybody socially was present.

The Duchess of Argyll came as Marie Antoinette. Marie's own necklace around her neck.

"I borrowed it from the Duchess of Sutherland," she said. "But it doesn't help keep me warm."

The Earl of Carnarvon, master of ceremonies, had to break the bad news that the Duke of Marlborough, struck with stage fright at the last minute, would not recite "Don't Drop Your Daughter Down the Drain, Mrs. McCorquodale."

While a chorus of society's glamour girls put on a play called The Debutante's Dilemma, economist Roy Harrod lectured Chancellor of the Exchequer Peter Thorneycroft on economics.

Sir Alfred Bossom's gardener resigned when he discovered three of his prize bushes had been uprooted to make room for the party.

And Mrs. Legge's husband flew off to South America.

"He hates parties," she sighed. "Poor dear."

Won't Seek Seat

Victoria Labor Council will not enter a candidate in the coming municipal elections.

Al Playfair, chairman of council's political action committee, said it would be "impossible" to elect a candidate, and that political education should come first.

Smog, Smut, Smell-Proof

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

With shrub planting one upon us one question which always arises is what subjects can be grown around the north side of the house where sunshine is available only in the early morning and late afternoon or evening. Providing the aspect of the problem bed is reasonably open with no overhanging tree branches to rob down the there are some remarkably fine shrubs which will thrive under these conditions.

Skimmia oblata is a neatly compact evergreen shrub which is very hardy and which performs very well indeed in a north facing aspect. It is remarkably resistant to smog, smuts and industrial fumes too, a quality which is becoming increasingly important as more industrial plants become established up Island.

In spring the stiff branchlets are laden with fragrant white flowers followed later by red berries which are often retained on the plant well into the winter.

A near cousin, Skimmia japonica is a dense compact evergreen bush, but also not a north facing subject but one which on the whole flowers in April, extremely late in the fragrance and is possessing [illegible] Skimmia is prefer a [illegible] soil in the loams [illegible] pH [illegible] at all.

'Business Boom Over —Output Must Go Up'

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP)—Canada's three-year business boom has ended and the key to continued prosperity is increased production, A. C. Ashforth, president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, said Thursday.

"Economic activity is no longer moving upward. . . . While month-to-month increases are no longer being recorded, the important thing is that business activity continues at or near an all-time record," he said.

'Let's Build a City Hall To House Conventions'

Scurrah Launches 'An Idea'

Construction of a convention hall as the ground floor of a city hall building was suggested by Mayor Percy Scurrah yesterday as "an idea worth exploring."

"For the sake of argument," the mayor said, if we decided to put a new city hall up there [illegible] Cathedral Hole I suppose we could put a convention hall to seat 2,000 or 2,500 persons on the ground floor with the city hall offices above it.

SAVING MONEY

The cost he said would be very much less than for a separate auditorium which I consider is beyond our means at the present time since the same functions would be carried on there and so forth would serve the same convention hall and city use.

"It might be managed by a city department and could be operated at very much less cost than a separate auditorium.

TO MEET ALL NEEDS

The mayor said he thought a convention hall capable of seating 2,500 persons and of being divided into separate units for groups of 75 to 500 would meet all Victoria's requirements for many years to come.

I don't think we would be justified in spending two or three million dollars for an auditorium that would probably lose $10,000 or $15,000 a year, he said.

Full of Beans and Ready to Sell

Stoking up at a bean feed last night to get that extra energy needed to go out selling nuts in the Victoria Y's Men's Club-produced drive to pay for summer camping of 20 young foster children in Greater Victoria area are, left to right, twin brothers Arthur and Herbert Spratt, 14, Roger Hechtide, 9, and another teacher Jean Spratt, 12. Child Burnt In Oven

Nine-month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wright 2190 Neil is in Royal Jubilee Hospital suffering from second degree burns to both hands following an accident at his home yesterday morning.

Young Randall Wright while crawling about the kitchen managed to get open the oven door of the electric stove. The oven was on and while Randall climbed up and leaned with his hands inside the oven both were burned.

A neighbor, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Wright and her infant to the hospital where he was treated and admitted.

Comparing Symphonic Notes

Comparing notes isn't confined to music when some of the members of Victoria Symphony Orchestra get together. Talk could be about hair styles when flautist Linda Redden, left, a working girl, and violinist Julia Hunt, a housewife, team up at rehearsal. They'll be playing Sunday and Monday when Clifford Evens conducts the orchestra in music of Bach, Mendelssohn and Brahms at the Royal Theatre. — (Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Mooney Invites Youngsters:

Help Clear Beaches

ALD. MILLARD MOONEY

Sunday Bee Set

Ald. Millard Mooney yesterday appealed to the hundreds of young people who benefit from our beach facilities every year to show their appreciation by turning in the big beach clearing work party scheduled Sunday at Beaver Elk Lakes.

Chairman of Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee's project to develop new beaches at Beaver Elk Lakes as part of a regional centennial project, Mr. Mooney reported that initial response indicates there will be "a lot more" help next Sunday than turned up at the initial bee this week.

NAVY'S PART

Meanwhile it was announced that navy underwater demolition crews are awaiting final navy approval to undertake a stump removal job from the proposed beach areas probably next Tuesday.

Mr. Mooney said that underwater charges would be used only on stumps that refuse to budge when pulled by cable and opportunity for navy frogmen to take to the water.

Gas Stations Secret Talks Tonight

A special committee of city council will meet Victoria service station operators behind closed doors tonight at 8 at city hall to discuss proposed closing hour regulations.

"Operators are claiming they are being high-pressured by the oil companies, so we want to deal with the operators by themselves so they can talk freely," Ald. M. H. Mooney said last night.

"We want an honest opinion from the operators on the closing hour arrangements that would suit them and serve the public best.

We will have a roll call to make sure that only operators are there.

Victoria service stations are now able to open and close as they please. The proposed new by-law would require them to close at 6 p.m. or remain open a full 24 hours a day.

Chest Total $170,246

Donations to the Community Chest campaign totalled $150,246.32 last night, 69 per cent of the drive's $251,717 goal.

Victoria Asian Flu Still Not Confirmed

Although hundreds of Victorians have suffered from flu and [illegible] many have received anti-Asian flu shots, it is not yet certain that Asian flu has raged in Victoria.

Several weeks ago city medical health officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy sent sample swabs [illegible] and Lower Vancouver Island, officials said.

Dominion laboratories in Ottawa [illegible]

"Until we receive the results we cannot say that we [illegible] that Asian flu has raged in Victoria," Dr. Mahaffy said.

The Ottawa laboratory [illegible]

Dr. A. N. Beattie of the Saanich and Lower Vancouver Island Health Unit said he has not received any further reports of flu outbreaks in this area.

Only one death in the large area was reported, he said.

Though not caused by influenza was given as the cause of death of a 72-year-old woman in October, Dr. Beattie said.

Three deaths were attributed to flu complications in the Victoria area.

Nov. 29 Last Tender Day For Government House

Tenders for structural work on the new Government House will be received until 2 p.m. Nov. 29 Works Minister W. N. Chant announced yesterday.

Initial construction will probably begin during early December.

The new building will go up on the same site as the old Government House which was gutted by fire last April.

The minister said plans and specifications of the new Government House may be obtained from his department on and after next Wednesday.

Phone Booths Must Wait

There may eventually be two public telephone booths on the Douglas Street sidewalk one near Fort and the other near Yates but not for a while, city council finance committee decided yesterday to defer consideration of allowing the booths until underground wiring is completed.

The [illegible] telephone program will be discontinued indefinitely in January.

Sole Supreme Good Fish Dinner

Bless your kind hearts! In tune with National Fish Week [illegible] response to my request for a good fish recipe contest with [illegible] recipe for Witches' Brew. I've that amount as a maze.

This simple contest was open [illegible] telephone never stopped ring- [illegible] Very many thanks to you [illegible] all. It was Mrs. [illegible] to whom [illegible] started all this because she [illegible] wanted the recipe for a church [illegible] luncheon. I phoned her just [illegible] she joins me in thanks and was equally thrilled at your kindness.

WITCHES' BREW

One and a half pounds round steak [illegible] pound haddock cut [illegible] 2 large onions, chopped, 2 green peppers, chopped, 1 small can kidney beans, 1 small can mushrooms, 3 large ripe tomatoes, 2 cups cooked egg noodles, rice or spaghetti.

Fry steak in quotes, girls. Brown steak till golden brown. Then add cut-up haddock and continue cooking till haddock is flaky. Add onion and peppers and cook for about 10 minutes. Add mushrooms, beans and tomatoes, seasonings and cook very slowly on top of stove for about 20 to 30 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Add rice or noodles or spaghetti, whichever you prefer. Serve with a green salad and hot rolls. Delicious!

Changing the subject completely - I'm going to suggest a fish dinner and the story goes something like this.

"How much is a good fish recipe worth to you - 50 cents, $1, $5?" Recently the Nova Scotia Department of Trade and Industry decided that it would [illegible] the regulations as to variety of fish or type of dish. There was a proviso, however, that the [illegible] be a fish dish. And [illegible] the homemakers from the Bluenose country responded generously. About 300 entries in all were received.

These contained a wide diversity of recipes, some old and others new. One of the contestants, in the report, gave hers as recipes which had been handed down from mother to daughter for several generations.

Well, not [illegible] Last [illegible] the prize-winning recipe [illegible]

KERRY DRAKE

ANY YES KERRY! SAHARA DID MENTION HAVING A PARTY TONIGHT AFTER SHE FOUND OUT I HAD TO WORK!
SHE SAID YOU WERE TO COME OVER LATER, MINDY? AFTER YOU CLOSE UP!
LIBRARY HOURS
THERE'S ONE SMALL DETAIL! SHE FORGOT TO SAY IT TO ME!
LOOK - IF YOU DON'T THINK I SHOULD GO-T
DON'T BE SILLY! I INSIST THAT YOU GO!
WE... IN THAT CASE... OKAY!
BROTHER, YOU BACHELOR SHOULD EVER CONVERSE WITH A WOMAN UNLESS HE'S GOT AN EXPERIENCED HUSBAND NEARBY TO TRANSLATE WHAT SHE SAYS

MARY WORTH

NOW! - YOU COME WITH ME, MISS MARLOE! I KNOW YOU HOW TO GO AWAY!
I ONLY WANTED TO COULDN'T MEET HER! THE DOOR WAS UNLOCKED, SO I WAITED...
YES, YES! NO HARM DOWN THE STAIRS, EH? I GIVE YOUR MESSAGE TO MISS NORRIS!
ZAN FOR NEXT...

'Knell of Gracious Living'

There's Bad News For London Mews

LONDON (NANA) — High society and cafe society in London are uniting to fight a county council decision which they claim will "sound the death knell — and other phrases equally dire—to a whole way of "gracious living in London."

For high society and cafe society meet and mingle in "mews society" and the word mews in this case has nothing particularly feline about it, unless it's the howls of protest over this new decision.

The mews are the little alleyways and bypaths behind the stately houses of Belgravia and Mayfair. They were built by great architects like Nash and Cubitt as carriage houses to accommodate the carriages and grooms in Georgian and Victorian England.

COST TOO MUCH

But the sons and daughters of the merchants, princes and belted earls of those days have long since been forced to give up their huge town houses. Death duties and lack of servants have made it prohibitive, and only a government or a large corporation can afford to maintain one of them these days for an embassy or headquarters for a very rich firm.

So the "dispossessed," as they call themselves, moved into these tiny two-story carriage houses behind the stately homes, and with great taste and Riviera-like splashes of color created little islands of "culture" and graciousness within the larger island of London.

ELEGANT LIFE

Noel Coward was one of the first to make this way of life elegant and attractive. Kirsten Flagstad had a mews house. So did Sir Winston Churchill's nephew, John Spencer Churchill. Very recently, the street directory of scores of these tiny alleyways of small converted carriage houses reads like a roll call of Burke's Peerage and Who's Who.

The London county council caused the storm the other day when it announced it would grant no more licences for the conversion of these tiny houses. Their garages were needed to alleviate London's growing traffic problem.

CIVILIZED BACKGROUND

"It was sad news . . . it was crazy news," lamented one columnist. "But, for what remains of beauty, gaiety, brains and talent in London . . . the mews have provided a background of civilized living."

Indeed, some of the most attractive scenes in London are to be found in these mews with their cobbled streets, old-fashioned doorlamps, gaily painted doors and flowers growing outside in their window boxes or tiny gardens.

Some of the interiors are works of art themselves and the last repository of the fine furniture of the old houses. There is a neighborly atmosphere in the mews, everyone knows everybody else; and usually they gather at the "local," the nearest public house for a glass in the evening.

London has no "exurbia" in the American sense—colonies of artists and ambitious writers commuting to that land just beyond the normal suburbia. Instead, its mews provide islands of quietness against the rumble of traffic along the main streets.

They are not cheap. One mews cottage sold recently for the equivalent of $75,000 and leases on most can't be had, before conversion, for less than $10,000 with another equal amount needed for conversion. Unfurnished, they rent for $30 to $75 a week, which is a huge rent for Britain.

JAMES BAY

James Bay, at the southern end of Hudson Bay, is about 300 miles long and 150 miles wide.

Welfare Co-ordinator

Aged, Handicapped To Be Given Help

Greater Victoria Welfare Council has agreed to provide a rehabilitation co-ordinator in Victoria to assist in rehabilitation of handicapped and aged persons.

A study of rehabilitation facilities was made by the council about two years ago and at that time, investigations showed facilities were adequate but a co-ordinator was needed.

JOB FOR VOLUNTEER

The job of the co-ordinator, working on a volunteer, part-time basis, would be to help persons coming from hospital to receive needed rehabilitation care.

The program was put to the council by Dr. E. N. Boettcher, medical superintendent of St. Joseph's Hospital, and chairman of the council's rehabilitation committee.

It was also decided to recommend to the Community Chest that a home for socially maladjusted girls be set up in Victoria.

The council will recommend to the Chest that funds to establish the home be included in next year's budget.

The home would be used for about six to 10 girls over 12 who cannot fit into foster homes easily.

Old Liner Making Last Trip for CPR

LIVERPOOL, Eng. (CP)— The 28-year-old Empress of Scotland sails today on her last crossing to Montreal as a Canadian Pacific liner.

The high-stacked vessel, which still holds the record for the fastest crossing from Canada to the Far East, will be sold when she returns from Montreal Nov. 26.

OLD MONARCH

Robert Bruce, King of Scotland, reigned from 1306 to his death in 1329.

Launched in 1929 as the Empress of Japan, the liner completed a trip from Yokohama to Vancouver in seven days, six hours and 27 minutes in April, 1931.

Rechristened during the Second World War, the Empress of Scotland steamed 608,000 miles as a troopship, suffering internal damage in an air attack off Belfast in November, 1940. She returned to normal passenger service on the North Atlantic run 10 years later.

Needs Money

Academy Enters Business

LONDON (CP)—The austere entrance to London's Royal Academy of Art has been brightened with a stall stacked with colored prints, Christmas cards and art books. A pretty sales girl serves the customers.

Faced by rising costs, the trustees of the academy are falling in line with most other galleries in seeking to increase their revenue, previously obtained solely from entrance fees and private assistance.

Artists submitting entries this year to the academy's 189th exhibition have been charged a 10-shilling handling fee and the treasurer, Sir Edward Maufe, says the academy is considering the possibility of charging a commission on sales.

Since the academy houses no permanent exhibition, it receives no government subsidy and its art school still accepts students solely on merit without charging a tuition fee.

Adam to Receive Hospital Plaque

A plaque will be presented to Brig. John Adam for placement at DVA Hospital following ceremonies at the Cenotaph on Rembrance Day.

All members of the 48th Battalion are requested to meet in the board room of the Brittania Branch Canadian Legion.

Take Play to Halifax

If Town Does It Why Not Victoria?

If Grand Falls, Nfld. can do it, so can Victoria.

Richard MacDonald, executive director of the Dominion Drama Festival, who visited Victoria Monday to talk festival to Island drama officials, said he would "love to see Victoria back" in the event, which is to be held in Halifax next year.

When it was pointed out that Victorians might not have the money to take a play to Halifax, Mr. MacDonald said the 10,000 people in the area around Grand Falls, Nfld., raised most of the $5,000 to send their group to the last two festivals, "and one was held in Regina."

"If Victoria was to get in the final," he said, "I am sure both the municipality and the province could be appealed to for support, and I think they would get it."

The United Church of Canada was formed in 1925 by the union of Methodists, Congregationalists and part of the Presbyterians.

Four RCMP From City Promoted

A list of RCMP promotions issued Monday includes four Victoria officers and one from Sidney.

Moved up to staff sergeant from sergeant is W. A. Braun of "E" Division headquarters in Victoria. Corporals J. Jones and E. H. Fleetwood of the same headquarters have been named sergeants.

Const. S. B. Green of the RCMP ship Victoria, in the force's marine division, was made corporal, as was Const. William J. Stanton of Sidney detachment.

Walkout Over China Ends Red Cross Talk

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Seventeen government delegations, mostly Communist, walked out of an International Red Cross conference yesterday in a quarrel over the seating of American resolution by 62 to 44 votes to seat the representatives of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa regime as "The Republic of China."

Communist China's delegation walked out first, followed by the Russians.

Besides the Communist delegations here, the delegates to walk out represented two Arab nations—Egypt and Syria—and Indonesia. Egypt delayed her walkout until some time after the other delegates had left the hall.

The storm was provoked by the conference's approval of an man of the conference joined them in protest against the resolution. The Indian government delegation remained in the hall.

Russia then proposed that in view of the chairman's withdrawal the conference should be wound up.

When the proposal was voted down by 65 to 38, 15 delegations walked out, led by the Russians.

He Had Junk to Burn

HARRY HAIGH

Found guilty of operating a junkyard at his home address without having a permit, Harry Haigh, 1586 Rockland, was fined $300 or three months by Magistrate Henry C. Hall in city police court yesterday.

City prosecutor T. P. O'Grady submitted pictures taken on the grounds of [illegible] Sept. 16.

P. J. Sinnott, city lawyer and neighbor of Haigh, told of trucks loading and unloading at all hours of day and night, including Sundays.

Taking the stand in his own defence, Haigh said that what he wanted to sell he left on his truck. He had lost the use of one hand, and this was the only way he could make a living.

"You saw these pictures, Mr. Haigh," said Mr. O'Grady. "What have you to say about what they show?"

"The things in the pictures are mostly fuel for the house," was the reply.

"What about all those buckets and gas drums?"

"They're full of coal, every one of them."

"What's the old car in the pictures?"

"I gave it to a man who took part of it but left the rest. I just haven't been able to get rid of it."

"And the old tires?" asked Mr. O'Grady.

"They're spares for my truck."

Mr. Haigh had answers for all questions. Piles of old furniture were for fuel, too. "I break them apart and burn them," he said.

Another pile, apparently of metal, was pipe for a projected job in the basement of the house. What looked like an old tub was used to bring coal into the house. A washing machine was one of his own which had broken down, and just shoved outside.

"There are some mattresses showing in one picture, what of them?" Mr. O'Grady wanted to know.

"Well, there are a couple of kids bouncing around the house, so I put the mattresses outside for them to bounce on instead. They seem to get quite a kick out of it."

Magistrate Hall, however, said he was completely satisfied that Haigh was carrying on and maintaining a junkyard on his premises as charged.

He said he took condition of accused's hand into consideration in not making the fine heavier.

MALE NURSE

LOWESTOFT, England (CP) —Sidney Bailey, a former naval sick-bay attendant, has become Suffolk's first male district nurse. He has taken over the Lowestoft district, caring for male patients.

Two men, guilty of identical charges, were given identical sentences.

David McCulloch, 1291 Denman, and Stanley R. Hansen, 478 Fraser, pleaded guilty to driving while under suspension, careless driving, and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Each was sentenced to 15 days [illegible] fine.

* * *

In Saanich police court Frank E. Birtwhistle, 665 Baxter, pleaded guilty to a charge of depositing ashes on a floor in his home, and was fined $10.

$509,360 Job Begun

A $509,360 rewiring job, scheduled to last a year, has started at the giant government graving dock in Esquimalt.

Cmdr. T. F. Fairfull, superintendent of the graving dock, said the Vancouver firm of Ricketts-Sewell Electric Co. had begun the work. It consists of completely "rehabilitating" the electrical service that has been in use since the dock was opened in 1926, and adding new switch gear and other equipment for higher voltages.

Cmdr. Fairfull said the job would not be completed until "well into the latter part of next year."
